Essay and General Literature Index (EGLI) provides access to individual essays and articles that have appeared in books from 1900 to the present. Volumes are located in the reference collection at Reference AI 3 .E752. Semi-annual paper issues are cumulated into four-year hardcover volumes. Electronic access is available via the Library Home Page (http://odin.indstate.edu), under Databases, 1985-present (updated annually).

EGLI is traditionally associated with the field of literary criticism. It is an excellent source for information on an author's works that may have appeared in some general book covering more than one author, or covering various aspects of literature, such as symbolism or imagery. EGLI is also useful for locating information on a variety of non-literary topics in the humanities and social sciences, such as nuclear warfare.

The steps and excerpts (below) presented in this handout have been developed to serve as a basic guide to using EGLI. However, please remember, if you encounter problems or do not understand something, ASK FOR ASSISTANCE AT THE INFORMATION DESK.

USING the PRINT VOLUMES

1. Look up your subject alphabetically in the main section of the index. MAIN SUBJECT HEADINGS appear in bold print and are flush to the left margin of the printed column.

2. Note SUBHEADINGS (bold print phrases, centered in the printed column). Subheadings help you get more specific information on your topic. Examples of subheadings under an author's name can include: About; About Individual Works; Bibliography; Characters; Study and Teaching, etc.

3. Locate the complete bibliographic citation (title, author or editor, place of publication, date of publication, etc.) in the section called LIST OF BOOKS INDEXED, located in the back of each index volume. The AUTHOR entry is the MAIN ENTRY: i.e., look up the book by author, not title. If an editor is listed, the TITLE ENTRY will be the MAIN ENTRY.

4. Look up the TITLE or EDITOR of the book in LUIS to see if this library has a copy.
