There may come a time in your life,
When some shadow darkens your name,

You'll feel the struggle and strife,
The world's always quick to blame, goal in life you try to gain. Try as you may it pals for whom you'd even die. May some-day turn and seems in vain; You feel lone-ly, wear-y and blue, The pass you by. When you're al-one with-out a home, All world seems cold and drear-y to you Things will quick-ly bright-en in down and out, no one that's your own, Just laugh at your cares, sun-the af-ter while And your bur-dens light-en, If you on-ly smile: shine's made that way, When the tide of life turns, Luck will come to stay:

After The Clouds R.D. 5-2 CHORUS

Down the stream of life, paddle your own canoe,

wear a smile,

you,

Tho' the clouds of sorrow

Always

Give the best there is in rise, Smiles will drive them from the skies; In life's dreary hours, There'll be sunshine and flow'rs,

You'll find a bright blue sky, After the clouds roll by.
