Mississippi Honeymoon.

Written and Composed by JOHN P. LONG.

Band Parts Ready

2/- Per Set

Voice

TILL READY.

1. We've got the home, we've got the ring, I guess we've
2. Unless you've been, you couldn't tell The way that Copyright 1922, by Francis, Day & Hunter.

P. & D. 15983.

Francis, Day & Hunter.
(Publishers of Smallwood's Piano Tutor)
138-40 Charing Cross Road, London, W.C.2.

Printed in England. got most ev'-ry-thing, And the wed-ding day's one Sun-day morn-ing soon, in riv-er casts its spell. Ev'-ry Mis-sis-sip-pi mis-sis loves it so, I

June. Now all the while we're mak-ing plans. And when they've ask'd those mar-rriage know! A-long the stream we'll gent-ly creep. And it will rock us both to banns, I'll tell you how we're gwine to spend our hon-ey-moon.

sleep. The way our mam-mies used to do long years a-go.
We're gwine to float in a boat on the Missis-sip-pi, all day long. We're gwine to glide on the tide of the Missis-sip-pi, all day long. And when the sun goes down at night, We're gwine to cuddle up nice and tight. Then we'll spoonneath the moon on the Missis-sip-pi. Man in the moon's sure to think we're 'dip-py!" There on the air of the

P. & D. 15983.
Mississippi, all day long, You're sure to hear, if you're near, such a tender loving tune, And if you care to listen, She won't care, I won't care, We'll be such a happy and contented pair While we're on our Mississippi honey moon! We're gwine to moon!