America Needs You Like A Mother
(Would You Turn Your Mother Down?)

We know that there are different kinds of children, there are some who love their mother, with her children by her side. Some her own and some that she's adopted, still she looks at all with pride, now it seems the mother is in trouble and she needs her children's aid, all our many faults and failings she remains our only friend.
Some are coming forth to help her. But there's some who seem afraid.

Just like many loyal children. We should help her to the end.

Chorus.

America has been a mother. To the children of the world.

She has taken to her bosom every homeless boy and girl. Now we find that she's in trouble.

Danger's lurking all around. America, she needs you like a mother.

Would you turn your mother down? A down?
