The Land O' Romance

RACHEL MICHEL

GEORGE H. GARTLAN

Valse Lente

There are lands both far and near,
There are lands that we know nought of,
There are lands where peace is reigning,
There are lands both near and far.

Copyright MCMXXII, by Hinds, Hayden & Eldredge, Inc.
International Copyright Secured lands that we hold most dear; But the land most desired the lands where men rule by might; But the wonderful land that we whole world o'er, Is the land of Romance that lies at youth's door. The love to behold, Is the land of Romance where one never grows old.

REFRAIN

land of Romance where love reigns supreme, The wonderful land of which all of us dream. The sunlight is golden, the sky always blue, Roses bloom everywhere, birds singing too, The king is Prince Charming so

Handsome and bold, One to compare, with the gallants of old, And the Queen so it seems, is the girl of my dreams, In the wonderful land of Romance. The land of Romance.